The benefits of being bilingual

Being bilingual means having the ability to live your everyday life using two languages. There are many advantages to this and in Wales one of the most common routes to bilingualism is being educated through the medium of Welsh.

The aim of this booklet is to explain the advantages of being bilingual, answer a few common questions and tell parents where they can find more information about Welsh medium education in the Vale of Glamorgan.

An Educational Edge ...

- Bilingual children tend to achieve higher within the curriculum and to perform better in exams.
- Learning a second language at a young age helps children develop an ear for languages and gives them a head start at learning a third or fourth language as they get older.

- Children who speak two languages tend to become better at analysing data, multi-tasking, tend to do better in IQ tests and have higher cognitive skills.
- Because they learn in a way that teaches more than one word for an object or concept people who speak two languages become more flexible, sensitive and creative.

Advantages in later life...

- Speaking two languages offers more employment opportunities. In Wales speaking Welsh is a workplace skill, especially within the public and service sectors, and due to recent changes to the law more and more employers will need a bilingual workforce.
- Bilingual people earn on average 11% more.
- People who speak two or more languages tend to do better working under pressure.
- Speaking more than one language opens up a wider range of social activities and expands horizons.
- Learning through another language helps children develop a greater sensitivity to other cultures and backgrounds.
- Speaking more than one language helps to reduce the risk of dementia in later life.

Welsh Heritage & Culture ...

* The Welsh language is a key part of our Welsh heritage. Speaking Welsh gives people a closer relationship with the history, heritage and traditions of Wales. It also lets people learn the Welsh sayings, music, poetry and literature which are celebrated and respected worldwide.

* These cultural benefits make for a strong personal identity which increases a young person's sense of belonging and self-worth.

Did you know?

At least half of the world's population is bilingual or multilingual i.e. they speak 2 or more languages.

and did you know ...

Welsh is one of the oldest living languages in Europe.

Put simply, a bilingual education enhances opportunities – it doesn't limit them.

“ I see the benefits but I don't speak Welsh and I'm concerned that ... ”

“ ... I won't know what's going on in a Welsh speaking environment. ”

The vast majority of parents who send their children to Welsh medium schools in the Vale don't speak Welsh themselves. This is why Welsh medium schools in the Vale of Glamorgan always communicate with parents in both Welsh and English.

The classroom environment is Welsh (apart from English lessons of course!) but whenever parents, carers, relatives and friends visit the school, bilingualism is the norm. This means that teachers and pupils will speak Welsh or English depending on who is in the conversation.

“ ... I won't be able to help my child with homework. ”

This is a very common concern that teachers in Welsh medium schools are fully aware of and always take into account when setting homework. In almost all cases homework will have an English explanation provided with it so all parents can help their children with the work.

“ ... I don't want their English language skills to suffer ”

Bilingual people are more sensitive when communicating and so are more aware of the needs of listeners, especially when switching from one language to another. This often makes them better communicators in both languages.

There is also a large amount of support available on child-friendly websites – homework after all is set for children and not parents! But, if in doubt, simply ask.

What do parents say ?

“ I was initially concerned that I would be the only parent that didn't speak Welsh and that my son's pace of learning would be behind his English speaking peers. This has not been the case and at the age of 6 he reads well in both languages. ”

Sam Willis, Llantwit Major

“ As a non-Welsh speaker, I had worried that I could not support my children in their education. I can now say that I am involved with every aspect of their education and feel thankful to the school for this. I love listening to my children speaking Welsh and have picked up a few words myself. ”

Juliet Evans, Barry

“ I am hugely proud of being Welsh, of our culture and heritage and the language is a big part of that. Being able to give the gift of language to my son is a joy. Welsh can be a huge help in the workplace and a real asset to a career in Wales. Research shows being bilingual can help you learn other languages too.

So it's all good! ”
Lucy Owen,
TV News Reader & Presenter,

And the pupils ?

“ Choosing Welsh medium education for me was one of my parents' best decisions. It's brilliant being able to say I'm bilingual! ”

Lloyd Evans,
former pupil of Ysgol Gymraeg Bro Morgannwg
studying medicine, Cardiff University

“ The ability to switch between languages as I study medicine has increased my confidence as I learn new things. I can think of things quickly in different ways. ”

Gareth Davies,
former pupil of Ysgol Gymraeg Bro Morgannwg
Oxford University student

“ I am so proud to be Welsh and being able to speak the language is awesome. ”

There are also a number of Welsh medium pre-school playgroups in the Vale run by an organisation called Mudiad Meithrin. There are more details on this in the directory at the end of this booklet.

If you want to know more about your options for your child's education why not...

- call your local school to arrange a visit and to have a chat with the headteacher.
- go along to some local Welsh language pre-school playgroup activities for new parents such as Cylch Meithrin or Cylch Ti a Fi .
- speak to other parents and friends who have had experience of Welsh medium education. You could even have a chat with parents outside the school gates!
- search 'bilingual parenting' online.

If you decide to choose Welsh medium education for your child all you will need to do is register them with the Council's school access and organisation team and let the school in question know.

Directory

Outside of the Vale's schools there are lots of organisations and societies working in the area that arrange activities and events for both children and adults through the medium of Welsh. Here are details of a few. If you'd like to try one or just learn more then get in touch.

Welsh courses for Adults at every level, across the Vale of Glamorgan.

A choice of short or long courses, daytime and evenings, and a variety of activities to enable you to practice your Welsh. Wherever you are on your journey to fluency, let us help you on your way.

Cymraeg for kids is a project managed by Mudiad Meithrin that focuses on increasing the number of nursery age children that are able to speak Welsh.

It shares information, advice and support to parents on the benefits of being bilingual, the importance of introducing Welsh to children as early as possible and the advantages of opting for Welsh medium childcare and education.

A range of support groups are run locally such as baby massage, baby yoga, Welsh Storytime sessions and family events to make them aware of the bilingual journey available for them and their child.
