Frequently Asked Questions

General

What is the purpose of the Freelancer Fund?

The purpose of the Fund is to support Freelancers working in the cultural sectors facing financial challenges in the period from April 2020 - March 2021 as a result of the COVID-19 outbreak.

What do we mean by 'freelancer'?

Freelancers are sometimes known as contractors, may run their own business and are often defined as self-employed although they differ slightly from the self-employed. Freelancers may carry out multiple jobs on behalf of different companies, and often tend to work alone. A freelancer tends to work on numerous short-term contracts, offering services and time to various organisations in return for an agreed fee. Freelance workers are common in music, writing, journalism and web design industries.

How much funding is available?

A total of £7m is available to support freelancers across Wales.

How will the funding be delivered?

The funding will be delivered by local authorities in Wales, on behalf of Welsh Government.

Eligibility

Who can apply for the Freelancer Fund grant?

Support is available to assist freelancer professionals whose work has direct creative/cultural outcomes, who work in the four key sub sectors targeted by the Cultural Recovery Fund:

- The Arts;
- Creative Industries;
- Arts and Heritage Events;
- Culture and Heritage.

These are broad sectors, covering a number of professions (the Creative Industries Federation infographic provides a useful illustration) and, in principle, applications can be received from freelancer workers in these sectors. However, please note, this funding is specifically for cultural and creative subsectors and roles that that been forced to cease work and/or face difficulty restarting because of the impact of Covid-19 restrictions.

Those in roles that have been able to continue at previous or near previous levels of activity with or without support (e.g. architects, graphic and web designers, games designers etc.) should not apply.

This Fund is also not intended to support freelancers in the sports sector. Welsh Government is working with Sports Wales to discuss support for the sports sector in Wales.

I am a freelancer, but I am unable to provide evidence within the timeframes set out in the Fund criteria due to being on a period of paternal / maternity leave. Does this make me ineligible?

No, you are eligible to apply. However, we would still want to see some evidence of your work as a freelancer. For example, you could provide evidence outside the agreed parameters of the eligible periods of work / loss of work set out in the guidance.

I am a freelancer but I also work part time, would this make me ineligible? If not, will I receive a smaller sum of money?

Applications are welcomed from both full and part time freelancers. The same flat grant of £2,500 is awarded in both cases, subject to meeting wider eligibility criteria. However, please note this grant is targeted at freelancers in most need of support due to loss of earnings as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic. We would not expect to see freelancers applying if they also have a well-paid job which has protected them from the worst of the financial impact of COVID-19.

I'm a freelancer, but I operate as a limited company. Does that make me ineligible?

No, if you can demonstrate that you are the only person operating as part of that limited company and can provide details through your annual accounts, you would still be eligible to apply.

I have received Start Up Grant support in the past. Does that make me ineligible?

Yes, if you received support earlier this year from the Start Up Grant launched in June 2020 as a result of COVID-19 to help new businesses survive the economic consequences of coronavirus. However, if you have only received general start up support in the past, you would still be eligible to apply.

I have applied for support from the Film and TV Charity Covid-19 Recovery Fund for UK film, TV and cinema workers. Am I also able to apply for a grant from this Fund?

We would advise that you apply through both schemes if you are eligible to apply, given the similar timeframes for processing of applications. We will however be working with the Film and TV Charity to identify where applicants have applied through both schemes, to avoid duplication and to ensure the Funds reach as many freelancers in need in Wales as possible. It is likely that if you are awarded a grant through the Film and TV Charity Fund you will not receive additional support from the Wales Cultural Recovery Freelancer Fund.

I've already received funding from the UK Government Job Retention Scheme / Self Employment Income Support Scheme, can I still apply?

Yes. If you have received previous support from either the Government Job Retention Scheme and Self Employment Income Support Scheme and are still experiencing financial challenges you are eligible to apply for this grant.

Is the grant taxable?

Yes. You will have to declare it as income as the fund is to support cash flow and replace income lost due to Covid19'

This will be followed shortly after by a second phase. The length of time each phase is open and the gap between phases will be dependent on the number of applications received. Freelancer Pledge

What is the 'Freelancer Pledge'?

One of the key commitments aligned to this funding is our ambition to develop and deliver a freelancer pledge. Freelance professionals are often active participants in their community, making a positive contribution to our social, cultural, environmental and economic well-being. The Well-being of Future Generations Act requires public bodies in Wales to enable a vibrant culture and thriving Welsh language as well as think about the long-term impact of their decisions, to work better with people, communities and each other. The Freelancer Pledge will help to forge a partnership between creative freelancers and public bodies to achieve this, and help the public sector leverage your key skills as a freelancer in the culture sectors to assist us to bring creativity and imagination to all areas of public life.

This might be co-creating solutions with the community, contributing to local development plans and development or bringing new approaches to capital projects. This could be in areas such as culture through to health or sustainable development and built environment. You may already have experience in working in the public realm with partners, be a socially engaged artist, a PTA member or trustee or just an active doer in your community who uses your lived experience to make positive change.

How will the Freelancer Pledge work in practice?

The Welsh Government has established a working group of key stakeholders to develop thinking on the freelancer pledge. The working group includes representatives from the freelancer community, unions and the Office of the Future Generations Commissioner.

If you are interested in being a part of this, please opt into the Freelancer Pledge. We'll use your details to inform and involve you in developments. We value the skills and experience of freelancers. We would expect any work undertaken by freelancers as a result of the Freelancer Pledge to be paid work.

Do I have to sign up for the Freelancer Pledge?

No, you do not have to sign up for the Freelancer Pledge in order to receive this funding. However, there are benefits for you as a freelancer in signing up for this pledge, such as opportunities to access paid work.

If I choose not to sign up to the Freelancer Pledge, will my application be treated less favourably?

No, your application will be assessed against eligibility criteria only. The Freelancer Pledge does not form part of this.
