What is Scrutiny?

Cabinet and Scrutiny functions were created as a result of the Local Government Act 2000.

The Cabinet makes most of the Council's decisions.

Scrutiny Committees consist of Councillors who are not members of the Council's main decision making group, the Cabinet. Scrutiny Committees can examine all functions and responsibilities of the Council, look at issues affecting the wider community and assist the Cabinet in improving and developing services.

Scrutiny enables Members to influence decisions that are taken by the Cabinet and to ensure that the views and needs of local people are taken into account.

What are the aims of Scrutiny?

- To help to improve the Council's performance
- To help the Council to deliver services which are sensitive to local needs by involving local people
- To ensure that decision making is clear, transparent and accountable
- To engage service users and the wider community in decision making.

What happens at the scrutiny meeting?

- It is important to note that Scrutiny Committee meetings are formal meetings of the Council.

- The Scrutiny Committee, or any Task and Finish Group it has appointed, can call “witnesses”, listen to statements made and also ask questions of those witnesses.

- All witnesses will be treated with courtesy and respect and all questions to witnesses are made in an orderly manner under the direction of the Chairman. It is also important to note that witnesses are under no obligation to respond to any questions.

- The number of speakers called upon will be limited as will the length of any speech. Community groups and other interested parties are encouraged to nominate a spokesperson to put forward evidence on their behalf. Speakers will be asked to make statements relevant to the topic under discussion, to avoid repetition, and not to ask questions.

- Members of the audience may also be invited to make written submissions within a specific deadline, whether they may have given oral evidence or not.

Staffing and Support

Democratic and Scrutiny Services Officers directly support their relevant Scrutiny Committees by providing advice and guidance during meetings, assisting Committees in choosing topics and undertaking research for their work programmes.

Service Directors and senior officers can also be called upon to provide input e.g. during preparation of the Scrutiny Committees' Work Programmes and in presenting written reports and recommendations.
